NOMADS On A Mission Active in Divine Service

United Methodist mission volunteers in a rewarding ministry of cheerful service

Who: Mostly retired couples/singles who travel in their personal RV's.

What: Construction, maintenance, painting, electrical, plumbing, cooking, office work, yard work, clothes closet staffing, food banks…you name it.

Where: From Southern California and Arizona to South Texas and Florida during the winter…and from Washington state to Maine and many points in between during the spring, summer and fall, helping United Methodist organizations - churches, colleges, children's homes and camping institutions.

How: Our typical three-week projects involve 24 hours of work per person each week, daily devotions, and ongoing fun. Disaster Rebuilding projects may extend for many months, with NOMADS working anywhere from one week to many weeks or months at a time.

Why: To share the power of God with those in need.

2013 Statistics for United Methodist NOMADS

3-week Projects: 132 projects in 27 states

Disaster Rebuilding: several long term efforts, in Cordova and Haleyville, Alabama, in Hattiesburg, Mississippi, in Minot, North Dakota, and in Bastrop, Texas.
